FEATURED PHYSICIANS

PrEP stands for pre-exposure prophylaxis. PrEP is a medication used to prevent HIV. PrEP comes in a daily pill that must be taken every day to ensure maximum effectiveness and should be used in combination with other HIV-prevention methods, including condoms. There is also a PrEP injectable option, which is given every two months (instead of a daily pill).

How to know if PrEP is right for you?

- Are you HIV negative?
- Are you sexually active and don't always use condoms?
- Do you have sex with people whose HIV status you don't know?
- Are you in a relationship with an HIV-positive partner?
- Do you or your partner inject drugs?

If you answered YES to any of the questions above, then we can help you learn more about PrEP.
